OIL & GAS REMOTE SENSING WORKSHOP

JULY 11TH - 12TH, 2018
BOULDER, COLORADO, USA

FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT

The North American Chapter of the GRSG is pleased to announce that, in collaboration with the University of Colorado and the US Geological Survey, we will be holding a workshop that will explore new applications of remote sensing within the oil and gas industry.

Remote sensing provides critical information to exploration and production decision-makers so this GRSG workshop will be a forum to present cutting-edge technologies.

The workshop organizing committee is now seeking contributions from industry professionals, suppliers and vendors, academics and government officials whose studies and applications fit the brief.

Further details and the formal open call for papers will be announced early next year on the GRSG website, however if you are interested in participating please email: workshop@grsg.org.uk
