

The Geological Society

-serving science, profession & society

Call for volunteers Early Career Network Committee

The Society is seeking volunteers to sit on the newly formed Early Career Network Committee.

The Network's key aims are to:

- Provide support and guidance for professional development across all sectors of geoscience, recognising the varied needs of those in different sectors and career stages
- Translate best practise in increasing early career engagement from comparable organisations to the Geological Society
- Organise event and activities across the UK
- Develop and maintain active online communications

The Network Committee will comprise 4 Officers and 6 elected members, reporting into the Science Committee and the Professional Committee. The length of service on this committee will usually be three years.

We need dedicated members with the time and vision to get the activities of this new Network up and running. Travel expenses are reimbursed but committee members receive no remuneration.

If you are interested in volunteering, please email Georgina Worrall (georgina.worrall@geolsoc.org.uk) your CV and a brief supporting statement by Friday 28th September 2018.

